Men and Depression

11 Signs of Depression in Men

Depression is a serious but treatable medical condition - a brain disease- that can strike anyone, including men.

In America alone, more than 6 million men have depression each year.

Men are far less adept at recognizing their symptoms than women.

A man is more likely to deny his feelings, hide them from himself and others, or try to mask them with other behaviors.

8 Main Differences between Male and Female Depression

Women tend to:

-  Blame themselves
-  Feel sad, apathetic, and worthless
-  Feel anxious and scared
-  Avoid conflicts at all costs
-  Feel slowed down and nervous
-  Have trouble setting boundaries
-  Find it easy to talk about self-doubt and despair
-  Use food, friends, and "love" to self-medicate

Men tend to:

-  Blame others
-  Feel angry, irritable, and ego inflated
-  Feel suspicious and guarded
-  Create conflicts
-  Feel restless and agitated
-  Need to feel in control at all costs
-  Find it "weak" to admit self-doubt or despair
-  Use alcohol, TV, sports, and sex to self-medicate
